About Me

Hi, My Name is Jenny Chen. I am a new web developer. I think a good webpage design will capture the attention of the visitor but also highlight the message of your brand or business. It should have nice colors, typography, imagery and it is should be smooth transitioning and fast loading. I am passionate about bringing art and design in creating awesome webpages. Please check out my work and let me know if you have any feedback or you would like to work together on projects. Click here to see my resume!

My technical skills are HTML, CCS, JavaScript, Node JS, Git. I am currently in bootcamp learning about web development from a really good instructor. My next adventure after this is to learn Python, so I can be a better developer and programmer.
